

Dr Martin Evans

Martin is Child Poverty specialist in UNICEF's Division of Policy and Strategy. He joined UNICEF in January 2012 after working in applied social research on poverty and social protection in the Universities of Oxford and Bath and at the London School of Economics, from where he obtained his MSc and PhD. Martin's experience in developing countries has involved research and consultancy for The World Bank, UNDP and UNICEF in numerous countries including Botswana, South Africa, Viet Nam, Malaysia and Timor Leste. Martin also has long-standing experience and knowledge of anti-poverty programmes in OECD countries, including impact evaluation and micro-simulation approaches. He is an associate fellow of the Centre for Social Exclusion at the London School of Economics.

Dr Valentina Calderon Mejia

Valentina is PhD graduate in Public Policy from the University of Chicago. She joined UNICEF's Division of Policy Strategy in September 2012. She has previously worked as a Consultant for the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank. Her research primarily focuses on labour markets and applied econometrics. She has wide range of experience analysing conducting ex-post evaluations of programs and economic shocks, and has written a number of papers on different issues including the impact of migration on labour markets, household bargaining power, and crime.

